Riverwalk Stadium

Riverwalk Stadium is home to the Montgomery Biscuits of the Southern League. The minor league baseball ballpark opened in Montgomery, AL in 2004. Located adjacent to the Alabama River in the heart of downtown Montgomery, the stadium can host up to 7,000 people. The park offers a wide variety of concessions, including biscuits. Riverwalk Stadium is located in the center of the Montgomery night life. Within two blocks from Riverwalk Stadium are several restaurants, a few local bars, and three of the best hotels Montgomery has to offer. Riverwalk Stadium is a converted train shed. The actual train station is located just two blocks away from the field. The shed that the stadium was converted from was over a century old. The abandoned train shed is the exterior along the first base side of the park. Many major league as well as minor league parks have been built out of existing buildings, but Montgomery's is said to be one of the nicer ones in the minor leagues. Riverwalk Stadium is considered a top rated ballpark.
